medieval monasticism traces the western monastic tradition from its fourth century origins in the deserts of egypt and syria through the many and varied forms of religious life it assumed during the middle ages it explores the relationship between monasteries and the secular world around them for a thousand years the great monastic houses and religious orders were a prominent feature of the social landscape of the west and their leaders figured as much in the political as on the spiritual map of the medieval world in this book many of them together with their supporters and critics are presented to us and speak their minds to us we are shown for instance the controversy between the benedictines and the reformed monasticism of the twelfth century and the problems that confronted women in religious life a detailed glossary offers readers a helpful vocabulary of the subject this fifth edition has been revised by janet burton to include an updated bibliography and an introduction which discusses recent trends in monastic studies including reinterpretations of issues of reform and renewal new scholarship on religious women and interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approaches this book is essential reading for both students and scholars of the medieval world this volume explores the rich diversity of the franciscan contribution to the life of the order and its ministry throughout england between 1224 and c 1350 the 21 contributions examine the friars impact across the different strata of english society from the parish churches the missions the royal courts and the universities friars were ubiquitous in england throughout this period and they participated in various programmes of renewal contributors are in order of appearance amanda power philippa m hoskin jens röhrkasten michael f custato ofm michael w blastic ofm jean françois godet calogeras peter v loewen lesley smith eleonora lombardo nigel morgan cecilia panti hubert philipp weber timothy j johnson mary beth ingham csj takashi shogimen susan j ridyard michael j haren christian steer anna campbell and michael j p robson st francis and cultural memory explores central aspects of english national spiritual and broader cultural identity through a detailed yet accessible analysis of a familiar figure the franciscan friar covering more than four hundred years from the late fourteenth to the late eighteenth centuries and taking in a wide variety of different literary and artistic forms the book charts the changing face of the franciscan friar in the english literary imagination and examines how developments within this evolving tradition were both shaped by and have helped to shape wider debates within english culture about the relationship between religious and national identity and the past and the present central to this analysis is the notion of cultural memory at the time of its suppression in the 1530s the franciscan order was too deeply assimilated into the social fabric of england either to be forgotten or to be credibly labelled an entirely alien presence despite the best efforts of protestant polemicists to do so rather the effect of the reformation was to supress but not completely to erase memories of english franciscans the catholic history that english protestantism sought to deny was prone to return in unexpected and often distorted and disturbing forms so that in the centuries following the reformation franciscans came to haunt the imagination of english writers and artists appearing in a wide variety of literary and artistic guises these ghostly franciscans functioned as spectres of a national past which english protestantism tried to disavow but which it was unable entirely to destroy franciscan friars appear in the work of some of the most popular and influential writers and artists from the fourteenth to the eighteenth centuries reflecting the centrality of the order to ongoing debates within english culture about religion and national identity the book discusses in detail the work of geoffrey chaucer thomas malory thomas more william shakespeare william hogarth edward gibbon ann radcliffe and matthew lewis it explores the individual responses of these writers and artists to the franciscans and their legacy and also highlights the ways in which this shared interest in the order reveals hitherto unacknowledged connections between their work offering snapshots of mercantile devotion to saints in different regions this volume is the first to ask explicitly how merchants invoked saints and why despite medieval and modern stereotypes of merchants as godless and avaricious medieval traders were highly devout and rightly so overseas trade was dangerous and merchants commercial activities were seen as jeopardizing their souls merchants turned to saints for protection and succor identifying those most likely to preserve their goods families reputations and souls the essays in this collection written from diverse angles range across later medieval western europe from spain to italy to england and the hanseatic league they offer a multi disciplinary examination of the ways that medieval merchants from petty traders to influential overseas wholesalers deployed the cults of saints three primary themes are addressed danger community and the unity of spiritual and cultural capital each of these themes allows the international panel of contributors to demonstrate the significant role of saints in mercantile life this book is unique in its exploration of saints and commerce shedding light on the everyday role religion played in medieval life as such it will be of keen interest to scholars of religious history medieval history art history and literature this volume explores the relationship of mendicant men and women to cities and their inhabitants in the mediterranean world c 1200 1500 it asks questions including what was specifically urban about the mendicant movement what does it mean to think of the mendicants as an urban phenomenon and was there anything common to mendicant experiences in the cities of the mediterranean in addressing these questions the volume expands our understanding of the mendicants by offering chapters that examine this religious movement within urban environments from the iberian peninsula north africa southern france and italy to the dalmatian coast aegean islands egypt and the levant the chapters treat a wide array of textual artistic and architectural sources to consider how mendicants navigated and negotiated the unique social dynamics of mediterranean cities in their interactions with political potentates merchants prisoners pilgrims religious and intellectual elites non christians and inhabitants of the surrounding countryside it thus offers an interdisciplinary and broad survey of mendicancy as a social religious phenomenon of the urban mediterranean demonstrating that these communities can be defined by much more than their traditionally accepted roles as beggars preachers and teachers mendicants and the urban mediterranean c 1200 1500 will be of interest to scholars and students across multiple disciplines engaged in questions about medieval mendicancy gender urban society inter religious encounters and the mediterranean
